In 1988, the Macintosh computer was still rather crude as far as being able to produce subtle curves, but it was outstanding at producing perfect geometric elements. As a starting point for Senator, Licko used the proportions of her earlier Emigre Fifteen bitmap

In 1988, the Macintosh computer was still rather crude as far as being able to produce subtle curves, but it was outstanding at producing perfect geometric elements. As a starting point for Senator, Licko used the proportions of her earlier Emigre Fifteen bitmap detected The result is a wonderful synthesis of upright sturdiness and elegance perfect for use in headlines and short texts.
